

Using the concept of operator overloading in Python, change the behavior of the multiplication operator in a way that multiplication operator behaves like an addition operator.